STORY OF STARK COUNTY

Located just north of the city of Peoria, in the great Illinois wheat belt, Stark County is watered by the Spoon River a stream immortalized by the late Edgar Lee Masters in his notable American literary classic, Spoon River Anthology. The county is situated about forty miles north of Lewistown, Illinois, where Masters grew to manhood and where he began a writing career that made him one of America's major poets.

When the celebrated British-American pianist and composer, Percy Grainger, sought to create a suitable musical setting for Spoon River Anthology, he found inspiration in an old Stark County folk tune; one played by fiddlers at dances in the county almost a hundred years ago. It was from this tune that Percy Grainger, a specialist in folk songs of England, Ireland and America, derived the principal idea for his lively and colorful piano solo; "Spoon River."

Aside from its associations with the Masters classic, Stark County is of interest for two outstanding pioneers who once lived within its borders --- Charles E. Duryea and the Reverend Philander Chase, Jr., It was Charles E. Duryea, once a schoolboy in the city of Wyoming, Stark County, who helped as much as any other inventor to create the automobile as we know it today.

And, in his particular field, the Reverend Philander Chase Jr. was equally notable, having been an influential preacher among the early settlers of central Illinois. He was a son of the Right Reverend Philander Chase, first bishop of the American Protestant Episcopal Church in Illinois and founder of historic Jubilee College near Peoria.

TERRITORIAL DAYS

When the Illinois country was separated from Indiana Territory in 1809 and became a territory of its own, what is now Stark County lay in St. Clair County --- one of the two counties which then composed the new Territory of Illinois. St. Clair was the larger of the two, a vast wilderness region embracing most of the present state of Illinois. The other county, Randolph, occupied a much smaller and more settled area below the future site of East St. Louis.

But in 1812 the county of St. Clair was reduced to almost its present size (today it includes East St. Louis) and a new county, Madison, was proclaimed by Territorial Governor Ninian Edwards. Madison, in its turn, embraced practically all of upper Illinois, and thus also the region out of which came Stark County. And this region continued to remain in Madison County even after Illinois was admitted to statehood in 1818.

When Pike County was formed in 1821, its area was very large, involving all of the prairie countryside west and north of the Illinois River, including the future sites of Peoria, Rock Island, Chicago --- and also of Stark County. As more and more settlers arrived in central Illinois, new counties were established at frequent intervals.

One of these, Fulton, was created in 1823 and embraced future Stark; then Putnam came into being in 1825 and it, in turn, contained the area that afterwards was to become Stark County. Here it remained until 1839, when Stark County was formed out of a major portion of Putnam and a smaller portion of Knox counties.

MILITARY TRACT

Long before Stark County was formed, and even before Illinois was admitted to statehood, the United States government set aside a vast region of land in Illinois for veterans of the War of 1812. This was called the Military Tract.

Any veteran of the War of 1812 could have a free quarter section of land in the Military Tract if he wanted it. Although many accepted "prairie quarters" from the government, few came West to settle on their grants. It seems the hardships of frontier life did not appeal to them. As a result, many veterans sold their prairie quarters (a quarter-section is 160 acres) for as little as $100. Some even traded theirs for a horse, a cow or a watch.

What happened afterwards was that some of the earliest settlers of the region had great difficulty in ascertaining the legal status of the land they had staked out. They often did not know if their tract was "Congress Land," which they were entitled to pre-empt, or "Patent Land," which originally belonged to some veteran who had sold it.

Frequently, a "land shark" would turn up as the owner of the land, having purchased it for a small amount from some ex-soldier. The speculator would then demand an exorbitant price for the tract that the settler had cleared, built his home on, and on which he had laid out a farm. If the settler could not meet the price demanded, he was evicted.

FIRST SETTLER

Generally regarded as the first permanent settler of the area that became Stark County is Isaac B. Essex. He was born in Virginia in 1800, and, as a young man, came West with his parents to Ohio. A few years later, young Isaac B. Essex felt the call of the road and this time moved further westward himself, settling at the then newly-founded town of Peoria on the Illinois River.

Here, Essex came under the influence of the Reverend Jesse Walker, a pioneer missionary to the Indians of the Illinois River country, often called the "Daniel Boone of Methodism." As a result of this, Essex was appointed a teacher to the Indians by the Reverend Mr. Walker. After teaching several terms, however, Essex again felt the call of the road.

We next hear of him staking out a claim on a level bluff overlooking the Mississippi River just below Rock Island. Here he planned to lay out a city to be called "Quebec." But this project failed to materialize, and once more Isaac Essex returned to Peoria. Then, in the spring of 1828, he went forth again, this time in search of a place for a permanent home.

And thus it was that he followed the course of the Spoon River and found a place to his liking in what afterwards became Stark County. Building a temporary shelter here, he staked out a claim, felled some trees for a log house, and made other preparations for permanent settlement. Essex remained here for the summer and then returned to Peoria.

"BUILDING BEE"

In the spring of 1829, Isaac Essex went back to his claim in future Stark County — a region which was then in Putnam County. But this time he was accompanied not only by his wife and children but by a group of friends, among whom were Daniel Prince, Frank Thomas, Stephen French, Simon Reed and two Baptist preachers, the Reverends Silliman and Allen.

We are told that Essex and his friends, immediately upon arrival at the spot, formed a "Building Bee." Under the direction of Essex, and using the logs he had obtained a year before, the party went to work erecting a cabin. It was completed within twenty-four hours, says one account of the "bee." This was the first home, the account adds, to be built in what is now Stark County.

The Essex cabin stood in the northeast quarter of Section 15 in what afterwards became Essex Township. Just northeast of this site today is located Wyoming Airport, which serves the city of Wyoming. Part of Wyoming city lies in Essex Township. The total population of the township today is 1,001. Another community in the township is Duncan, with a population of fifty.

After his cabin was completed, Isaac Essex settled down to the life of a frontier farmer. A short time later John B. Dodge came to the area and built a cabin near the Essex home. Then, in 1831, the parents of Essex arrived (Thomas and Elizabeth Essex), together with other members of their family --- Thomas, David, William, Joseph and a daughter, Mrs. David Cooper, with her husband. Although some of his brothers remained in the county, Isaac Essex later moved to the village of Dongola, in southern Illinois.

PIONEER LIFE

An unusual glimpse of pioneer life in Stark County is contained in a biographical account of Captain Almeron N. Harris, early settler, appearing in Atlas of Stark County and the State of Illinois published by Warner & Beers in 1873. The account, in part, reads:

"When Mr. Harris, father of the subject of this sketch first came to Illinois, he had nothing. Having written a letter to his relatives in the East, he afterwards earned and secured a twenty-five cent piece, and kept it for more than a year to pay the postage on a return letter --- so scarce was money at that time to him.

"When the elder Mr. Harris bought his present farm in 1843 or 1844 from a Mormon who was going to Nauvoo to join Joseph Smith, he paid for it by giving up his last horse and wagon, his watch, gun, cow, dishes from the family cupboard and the family bedding. His remaining possessions consisted of one cow, five sheep, eleven geese, two sows and a yoke of oxen. He subsequently traded his yoke of oxen for some rails that several soldiers promised him; but proved to be deserters and ran away and never paid him; so he lost his oxen.

"His family at this time consisted of nine children, none large enough to work much. Upon the loss of his oxen, his neighbors kindly offered to assist him. His reply was -- 'Thank you for your kindness, gentlemen, but if God gives me health, I want no help!, What old Roman ever exhibited a nobler independence?

" In fencing his first eighty acres, he bought the rails in Fraker's Grove, some six miles distant. He finally got a new yoke of oxen and built a sled of poles. He then would start in the early morning and get to La Fayette before daylight. After drawing three loads of rails a day, he would get home at eleven o'clock at night, covered with frost and snow. He had seen no warming fire during the day, and had but a piece of frozen bread for his dinner.

" His first house, which stood on what is now called the old homestead, was a log cabin he bought for sixteen dollars and which originally was located down on Indian Creek. He moved it to his farm, a few logs at a time. The mortar to plaster it was made in the cellar by the boys. A stick chimney, puncheon floor, table, hickory-bottom chairs, wooden spoons and gourd dishes were also made — necessity compelling the invention of these things.

" The subject of our sketch, Algeron Harris, well remembers the first tin cup that ever came into that cabin: it was bought by his father in Chicago, and was more highly prized than silver and gold-ware at the present day ...

" In 1848 the elder Mr. Harris put up his second house, a sixteen-foot frame building, and with a porch connected it with the old log cabin. He had previously built a thirty-foot barn, and prospects began to brighten. Labor was reaping its reward, but there were other hardships for this family to endure. On Easter Sunday, 1850 while the elder Mr. Harris was absent, the house was discovered to be on fire. A little bedding was saved, but the house, cabin and a year's provisions were destroyed. This was a severe blow, but nothing daunted, they moved into the barn, and during the summer built a temporary wood house.

" In 1851, he made the burnt brick on his own premises, and commenced a new house within a young grove of trees which had been planted in 1844. This new brick house was completed in 1853, and the grove around it has since then become a forest. The location is decidily beautiful and romantic."

It was in this house, built by his father, that young Almeron Harris grew to manhood. After serving in the Civil War, during which he was commissioned a captain, Almeron Harris returned to Stark County and became one of its most prominent citizens. In addition to maintaining a 500-acre farm, Captain Harris was active in Republican politics and a leader in the Granger movement among farmers.

WYOMING PLATTED

It was in 1836, while the region of future Stark County was still part of Putnam County, that the city of Wyoming was platted by General Samuel Thomas, early settler. From History of Wyoming, a typewritten mauscript prepared by Gay Shafer and now in the library of the Wyoming High School, we learn that General Thomas named his new city after a Pennsylvania town that was his former home.

General Thomas not only gave land for the Public Square in Wyoming, but also for a cemetery and for the Methodist Church. The last-named was organized in the Thomas home in 1836. A one-time schoolboy in Wyoming was Charles E. Duryea, pioneer American inventor and automobile manufacturer. Today, Wyoming is the largest community in Stark County, with a population of 1,496. It is served by Wyoming Airport and the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and Rock Island railroads, as well as by state highways 91 and 17.

EARLY VILLAGES

Founded in the same year as Wyoming, two stark county villages which survive to the present time are La Fayette and Osceola. Located at the western border of the county, in Goshen Township, the incorporated village of La Fayette was platted by William Dunbar, an early settler of the region. Today, La Fayette has a population of 301, contains a number of retail stores and service establishments, and has its own postoffice. It is located on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad and on State 17. The village of Osceola is located near the north border of the county, in Elmira Township, and was laid out by Robert Hall, William Hall, Archibald Van Dyke, Charles Van Dyke and Brady Fowler. It has a present population of seventy-five and is served by the postoffice at nearby Neponset (in Bureau County).

"SCOTCH SETTLEMENT"

In the northern portion of Stark County today lies the village of Elmira, with a population of 100. This village was the outgrowth of a colony of Scotsmen who settled here in 1838 and whose colony later became known as the "Scotch Settlement." We are told that the immigrant founders of the colony voyaged for six weeks on the Atlantic, and that they traveled an even longer period in the cross-country journey to what is now Stark County. They were a strict religious group and were strongly opposed to Negro slavery in the United States. They soon joined the Abolitionist movement and made the "Scotch Settlement" an important station of the Underground Railroad. In this activity, the Scotsmen here secreted escaped slaves in attics and barn lofts by daylight, and on moonless nights aided the slaves to the nearest station north.

STARK COUNTY ORGANIZED

After the close of the Black Hawk War of 1832, a conflict which resulted in the permanent removal of the Indians from Illinois, more homeseekers poured into the Prairie State than at any time in its previous history. Although many of the earliest settlers of Stark County were from Southern states, having come up the Mississippi and Illinois rivers and passed through the " gateway " of Peoria, there now appeared in the region, during the late 1830's, almost as many settlers from Eastern states; families from New England and New York State who had come by way of the new Erie Canal and the Great Lakes and had passed through the " gateway " of Chicago.

A glance of some of the pioneer families of Stark County will show the diversity of their origins. We find that the Buswells, Smiths, Spencers, and Eastmans were from New England; the Thomases, Moores, Holgates, Fullers and Whittakers from Pennsylvania; the Coxes from Ohio; the Perrys, Essexes and Parkers from Virginia; the McClanahans from Kentucky; the Hendersons from Tennessee; the Lees and Hayeses from New Jersey; the Halls from England; and the Turnbulls and Olivers from Scotland.

As more and more homeseekers established farms in the western portion of Putnam County and the eastern portion of Knox County, as settlements began to grow in number in this rich, fertile area, there soon arose talk of the formation of a new county. And this talk eventually grew into a definite call for action after a canvass showed there were 350 legal voters in the locality --- the required number then for the formation of a new county.

Now followed the circulation of petitions among the settlers on either side of the upper reaches of the Spoon River. When enough signatures had been obtained, the petitions were brought before the Illinois state legislature. That body acted favorably on the petitions and thus Stark County was created on March 2, 1839. The enabling act for the new county was signed by Governor Thomas Carlin.

As a matter of fact, the Illinois state legislature, in that same year of 1839, created fourteen other new counties besides Stark. These were Marshall, Brown, DuPage, Dane (now Christian), Logan, Menard, Scott, Carroll, Lee, Jersey, Warren, DeWitt, Lake and Hardin.

When Stark County was organized, the residents in two eastern townships of Knox County were directed by law to vote on whether they wanted to remain in Knox or be attached to the new county of Stark. They voted in favor of the new county. And thus it was that Goshen and New Jersey townships became part of Stark County.

GENERAL JOHN STARK

Stark County is one of the twenty-two Illinois counties named after military heroes, most of whom fought in the American Revolution. At the time Stark County was created and named after him, General John Stark was no longer alive. He was an outstanding officer in the American Revolution.

A native of Londonderry, New Hampshire, where he was born August 28, 1728, John Stark saw his first military service as a lieutenant in the French and Indian Wars. He later was commissioned a captain in that conflict. At the outbreak of the American Revolution he raised his own regiment, became its colonel, and fought gallantly at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Afterwards, he served in the expedition to Canada and in General Washington's campaign in New Jersey during the winter of 1776-1777. Later in 1777 he resigned his commission in the Continental Army. But he was soon in the field again, this time as major general in command of New Hampshire militia. With this force, General Stark defeated two detachments of Burgoyne's army near Bennington, Vermont, on August 16, 1777.

As this battle did much to bring about the final capitulation of Burgoyne and his men, Stark was commissioned a brigadier general in the Continental Army. He subsequently played an important part in the action about Saratoga, and later was placed in command of the northern department of the Continental Army.

At the end of the Revolutionary War in 1783, Stark was breveted a major general by action of the Congress. He died at Manchester, New Hampshire, May 8, 1822. The story of his life and military exploits is told in detail in Life and Official Correspondence of Gen. John Stark, written by his grandson, Caleb Stark.

PIONEER MISSIONARY

An outstanding personage of early Stark County days was the pioneer missionary, the Reverend Philander Chase, Jr. He was a son of the Right Reverend Philander Chase, first bishop of the American Protestant Episcopal Church in Illinois and founder of historic Jubilee College near Peoria. After being ordained in 1846, the younger Chase became a missionary among the early settlements of both Stark and Peoria counties.

Then, in 1852, he took up permanent residence in Stark County, settling on a farm in Valley Township southeast of the city of Wyoming. In that same year his father established Jubilee College in Peoria County and this became a leading educational institution of the time. It is now an historic shrine maintained by the State of Illinois.

Four years after settling on his Stark County farm the Reverend Philander Chase, Jr., was appointed pastor of St. Luke's Episcopal Church in Wyoming. He and his family moved to Wyoming and resided there until 1860. In that year the Reverend Mr. Chase moved back to his Valley Township farm but continued to serve his congregation in nearby Wyoming

FROM " MILLER'S POINT" TO TOULON

Soon after John Miller came in the late 1830's and built a log cabin on the present site of the city of Toulon, a number of other homeseekers arrived and in time the place became known as " Miller's Point. " And this name remained until a townsite was platted here in 1841 and given the new name of Toulon after a town in Tennessee. Now Stark county's seat of justice, Toulon, located in the center of the county, has a population of 1,173. It is situated on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad and on state highways 91 and 17. Major portions of both Toulon and Wyoming are within the borders of Toulon Township, which in 1950 had a total population of 2,528.

LINCOLN COMES TO STARK

An event of unusual interest in the history of Stark County was that of a political speech delivered by Abraham Lincoln in Toulon city on October 8, 1858. It was during the senatorial campaign of that year, when Lincoln sought to unseat Stephen A. Douglas as senator for Illinois, that Stark County friends of the tall Springfield lawyer invited him to speak in Toulon.

After engaging Senator Douglas in one of the series of Great Debates at Galesburg on the afternoon of October 7, 1858, Lincoln boarded a Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train and rode to Kewanee, where he stayed overnight. On the following day he rode in a carriage over dusty roads to Toulon city.

A delegation, headed by Lincoln's friend Thomas J. Henderson, met the future President in Toulon and escorted him to the Virginia Hotel. Following a series of conferences with his supporters in the hotel, Lincoln was escorted to the city's Courthouse Square in the afternoon and there he addressed a large crowd of Stark County citizens. When the meeting was over Lincoln returned by carriage to Kewanee and continued on his stump-speaking tour.

Later, on October 26th, Lincoln's opponent, Senator Douglas, arrived in Toulon and also delivered a political speech. As has since been established, this 1858 senatorial campaign in Illinois gave Lincoln a national reputation and placed him in the front rank of presidential possibilities for the coming 1860 election, even though he was the loser in the contest with Douglas.

AN AUTOMOBILE INVENTOR

If the automobile as we know it today is the combined work of a dozen or so American and European inventors, first on this list of inventors is the name of Charles E. Duryea, who as a boy lived in Stark County. Although Charles E. Duryea was born in 1861 at Canton, Illinois, just south of Stark County, he was still a youngster when his family moved to the city of Wyoming, in Stark County. For some years afterwards, young Charles Duryea attended the South Side school in Wyoming.

On growing to maturity, Duryea went east and in 1892 he and his brother, Franklin, after working in a barn at Springfield, Massachusetts, produced what is now considered the first American-made gasoline car. In appearance it was a buggy driven by a one-cylinder motor and steered by a lever. When this new type of vehicle appeared in the streets of Springfield, it was promptly dubbed a "horseless carriage."

It was in 1895, three years after Charles Duryea came out with his gasoline car, that the first automobile race in America was staged in Chicago. It was sponsored by a newspaper, the Chicago Times Herald, and held on Thanksgiving Day. The winner of this historic race was Franklin Duryea, who rode in a "horseless carriage" made by his brother. The race was from Chicago to Waukegan, a distance of fifty-four miles. It took Franklin Duryea more than ten hours to reach the goal at Waukegan.

SPOON RIVER ANTHOLOGY

Supposedly inspired by the lives of people who once lived along the Spoon River, a stream that winds through Fulton and Stark counties, Spoon River Anthology, when it first appeared in 1915, was acclaimed by most critics as a new American literary classic. And its author, Edgar Lee Masters, who grew to manhood in Lewiston, Fulton County, was hailed as a major American poet.

Although forty years have passed since the book was published and although its author has been dead for some years, Spoon River Anthology still remains firmly placed on the shelf of American literary classics. It is a volume of poetic epitaphs, in free verse, reputedly having to do with the secret lives of people who once lived in towns and villages along the Spoon River.

Actually, however, the people described in it could have been found in any of the towns and villages of the United States, or in similar places in England or elsewhere in the world. In other words, Spoon River Anthology has a universal appeal, like all good classics. In this respect it is similar to Oliver Goldsmith's masterpiece, The Deserted Village.

In addition to this volume and a biographical work called Across Spoon River, Masters wrote Starved Rock (1919) Doomsday Book (1920), Open Sea (1921), New Spoon River Anthology (1924), and The Serpent of the Wilderness (1933). He also wrote two boys' books, Mitch Miller and Skeeters Kirby. In 1922 Masters penned a novel, Children of the Market Place with Senator Stephen A. Douglas as its central figure. Another real historical figure of the countryside from which Masters came, Abraham Lincoln, is described in Lincoln the Man published in 1931. Edgar Lee Masters died in Philadelphia in 1950 at the age of eighty-one.

STARK COUNTY TODAY

On the basis of latest United States census figures, Stark County in 1950 had a total population of 8,721, of which 5,164 were classified as rural non-farm dwellers (residents of towns, villages and country places) and 3,557 as rural farm dwellers. It has a land area of 291 square miles and its density of population in 1950 was thirty inhabitants per square mile.

In that same year there were 953 infants under five years of age and 1,057 persons sixty-five years old and over; the median age of the county population was given as 32.0 years. The county contained 5,565 potential voters. Under the heading of vital statistics there were 191 births, 83 deaths (including four infants) and 67 marriages.

The total number of families (two or more persons related by marriage or blood, was given as 2,255, and the median income of all of these families in 1949 was $3,017. More than 29 per cent of these families had incomes of less than $2,000, while 20.1 per cent had incomes of $5,000 or more.

In the field of education, Stark County in 1950 had a total number of 1,420 young persons between the ages of seven and seventeen (school age). Of this total, 955 between the ages of seven and thirteen were attending county primary schools (99.5 percent in this age group), and 410 between the ages of fourteen and seventeen were attending high school. The median number of school years completed by all persons in the county twenty-five years old and over was 10.6. A little more than 3 per cent of these completed less than five grades, while 42.4 per cent completed primary than five grades, while 42.5 per cent completed primary school and attended high school.

As for the labor force in the county in 1950, there were 6,410 potential workers — persons fourteen years old and over. Of this number 3,012 were actually employed (79.0 percent of which were males and 15.6 per cent females ). The largest number of employed, 1,276, were engaged in agriculture. Next largest group were employed in wholesale and retail trade (404), then came manufacturing (369), professional and related services (211), construction (180), transportation, communication and other public utilities (154), personal services (132), finance, insurance and real estate (48), and mining (5). ## CITY OF TOULON

County seat of Stark and one of its two principal cities, Toulon in 1950 had a total population of 1,173. Besides many retail stores and automobile and other service establishments, the city has its own postoffice and banking facilities. Located here is the Stark County Courthouse. Here, also, is published the Stark County News, a weekly newspaper.

Toulon is served by the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad and by state highways 91 and 17. A major portion of the city is located in Toulon Township, which has a total population of 2,528. This figure includes most of the population of Wyoming city, which also has its major portion in Toulon Township.

Originally called "Miller's Point," Toulon city was platted in 1841. In 1858, during the Illinois senatorial campaign of that year, Abraham Lincoln delivered a speech in Toulon. He was followed a few weeks later by Senator Stephen A. Douglas, who eventually won the senatorial contest. Both the city and township of Toulon were named after a town in Tennessee.

In 1843 a village was platted here by Ambrose Fuller and named Elmira. Today, Elmira is the principal community of Elmira Township, which has a total population of 727.

OSCEOLA

TOULON CITY

A small part of Toulon city is situated in Goshen Township, the population here being 177. As the major portion of Toulon is located in Toulon Twonship, the city is described in detail in "Cities of Toulon and Wyoming."

CITY OF WYOMING

Also located in Toulon Township is a major portion of Wyoming, other leading city of Stark County. It has a population of 1,496. In addition to the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy and the Rock Island railroads and state highways 17 and 91, the city is served by Wyoming Airport, located just south of it on State 91.

Wyoming has numerous retail stores and automobile and other service establishments, as well as a postoffice and banking facilities. Here, also, is published the Wyoming Post Herald, a weekly newspaper. The city is the principal trading center of the farming region in eastern Stark County. Just west of it winds Spoon River.

From History of Wyoming, a manuscript by Gay Shafer, we learn that the city was platted in 1836 by General Samuel Thomas, who named it after a Pennsylvania town in which he formerly lived. A one-time schoolboy in Wyoming was Charles E. Duryea, pioneer American automobile inventor and manufacturer.

MODENA

Another community in Toulon Township is the hamlet of Modena, which in 1950 had a population of fifty. It is served by the postoffice at Wyoming city. Modena is located in the level, fertile farming region northeast of Toulon city.

STATE FLAG OF ILLINOIS

ILLINOIS' STATE FLAG was officially adopted on July 6, 1915, after a vigorous campaign by Mrs. Ella Park Lawrence, State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Early in 1912, Mrs. Lawrence began visiting local D. A. R. chapters throughout Illinois seeking cooperation in promoting selection of an official State banner to place in the Continental Memorial Hall in Washington, D. C. In 1913, Mrs. Lawrence offered a prize of $25.00 to the Illinois D. A. R. chapter submitting the best design for the banner. She also wrote to members of the General Assembly seeking their cooperation.

Four judges were then selected to choose the winning design. Thirty-five designs were submitted and the Rockford Chapter entry was chosen as Illinois' future emblem.

State Senator Raymond D. Meeker introduced the bill which was to legalize the flag. After passage in the Senate it was pushed through the House of Representatives, despite an overcrowded calendar.

The measure automatically became a law July 6, 1915, when the Governor failed to affix his signature to the bill.

The first official flag, made in Washington, D. C., was three by five feet in size, of white silk. Flags were given by Mrs. Lawrence to Secretary of State, Daughters of the American Revolution in Illinois; National Society Daughters of the American Revolution in Illinois; National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (to hang in Memorial Continental Hall, Washington, D. C.); Rebecca Parke Chapter, Galesburg and the Illinois State Historical Society.

Visitors to Springfield cannot fail to notice the State Banner flanking the Stars and Stripes in the Rotunda at the State House. In the same juxtaposition it appears in the office of the Secretary of State. It is flown on ceremonial days by numerous patriotic bodies throughout the State. For officials and the public alike it stands as a reminder of our greatness as a State and our pride in our membership in the United States of America.
